The Plantation Course

Williamsburg, VA

The Plantation Course is an Arnold Palmer and Ed Seay design that challenges players of all skill levels. With landmarks from Richard Kingsmill's 1736 plantation woven into the landscape, a round on this Kingsmill golf course is truly historic.

You'll find this 6,432-yard, par-72 course favors accurate iron play and good putting. Fairway landing areas are generous, but water comes into play on eight holes, and there's no shortage of deep woods or yawning ravines. The large greens make for inviting targets for approach shots, and once on the putting surface, undulations and swales make getting down in two a satisfying accomplishment.
